Feelings are like the flowers in this garden—the there are many different kinds. Talking about our feelings helps us keep our minds and bodies healthy. As you color these flowers together, share stories about when you've each felt those feelings. You can continue by writing other feelings in the blank flowers and doing the same.