The big, bright sun  told Wes it was time to wake up. It was a lovely day for an adventure! Wes and Elijah walked to the library to find the perfect book.

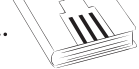

Inside the quiet library, they approached the librarian's desk for help. "Excuse me," Wes said. "I love reading about buildings, especially skyscrapers.  Do you have any books on them?"

"We sure do!" the librarian replied. She quickly typed  on the computer and said, "Let's check the architecture section; we have a lot of books on different buildings." Wes whispered excitedly. "Let's go find the book."

Wes and Elijah  began their search. They looked at a few books with complicated words, but Elijah thought they might not be ready for those just yet. They continued to explore.

"This book looks exciting!" Elijah said, pointing to a book with houses, offices, and shops on the cover. "It does look interesting. But it's not about skyscrapers, Dad," Wes replied. They kept digging.

Finally, Wes found the perfect book.  "This one has words I know, words we can learn, and it's all about skyscrapers. "It's perfect, Dad!" Wes checked it out, and they skipped home, with the sun setting behind a tower.
